A single-engine Cessna 210 has made an emergency landing on a bush track east of Broome, in WA's Kimberley.

Broome police said the pilot made the landing on a track in Djugun, a few kilometres east of Broome, in an area known as Buckleys Plains.

There was minor damage to the plane but the pilot is not injured.

Police tweeted a photograph of the plane saying "great skills shown by the pilot, all safe and sound".

The plane was on a flight from Alice Springs to Broome.

It is not yet know what caused the pilot to make the emergency landing.
