A man in his 40s is in a critical condition after crashing his single-engine crop duster plane in a paddock in Queensland's southern border region.

The pilot was airlifted to the Princess Alexander Hospital in Brisbane with major internal and facial injuries.

The man was pulled from the wreckage by witnesses, after his crop duster clipped power lines and crashed in a field near Goondiwindi about 7:30am this morning.

Paramedics at the scene said he suffered multiple injuries.

He was initially taken to Goondiwindi Hospital before being flown to Brisbane.
