

Emergency services on scene of a light plane crash in Hunter Valley

04 March 2019

Emergency services are on the scene of a light plane crash in the Hunter Valley.

Emergency services were called to Wine Country Drive near Broke Road at around 3:30pm following reports of a light plane crash.

Hunter Valley Police District's Superintendent Chad Gillies said one person was in the light aircraft and made a controlled landing.

NSW Ambulance said they have taken a 24-year-old man to the John Hunter Hospital via road in a serious but stable condition - he is complaining of neck pain but thankfully is otherwise uninjured and has been taken for precautionary checks.

The plane rolled multiple times when it came down near Broke Road.
